

Welcome to the BnB Finder Bed & Breakfast Blog

Bed & Breakfast news for Innkeepers and B&B travelers

Tuesday, May 5, 2009

Mi Fiesta

The first recorded Cinco de Mayo took place in California in the 1860s. Although it's a regional holiday in Mexico, it's become a popular national holiday in the U.S. There will be a number of festivals taking place, but if you would rather have a low-key celebration, head to Hacienda Corona de Guevavi Bed and Breakfast in Nogales, Arizona. Situated along the banks of the Santa Cruz River and near the Mexican border, this desert B&B is the prime place for your own fiesta. Invite your best buds, sip complimentary margaritas and learn how to make and eat authentic tamales. Dinner includes beans, tortillas, salsa, guacamole and dessert.

Or make 5 your lucky number and check in at Songbird Prairie Bed and Breakfast in Valparaiso, Indiana. Guests can book a two-night stay and save $55 on the second night. Be sure to request a special holiday breakfast that includes Mexican omelets with jalapenos and salsa on the side.

Find more unconventional Cinco de Mayo celebrations at an Arizona bed and breakfast or at an Indiana bed and breakfast. You can also use our advanced search box to find more B&B options.

Posted by BnB Finder @ 1:58 pm